The current wiki page has been changed to the HTML system of things, and it's got some rather interesting results. As it stands it loads, but has some strange behavior that will need some experimentation to figure out. Like how it affects the entire wiki page instead of just the HTML into the div on the wiki page. I think it might be how I've set up the CSS.